2.      What do people do with their old, out of date but still useful computers? Most people don't know how to deal with them. Many old computers are put away. Many more are simply thrown away as rubbish.

Finally, some companies are thinking of ways to bring down the number of old computers. Sony has agreed to help recycle old Sony products (产品). Dell

In some countries, laws have been passed, too. Computer companies have to pay for collecting and recycling their used products. And 70% of the computer waste must be recycled. The idea behind the laws is that computer companies themselves should pay for the cost. That will encourage them to make computers which are easier and cheaper to repair and upgrade (升级).

Yet many people are throwing away good computers, while others cannot afford them at all. Hundreds of organizations are working on this problem. They collect and repair old computers. Some also teach others how to repair computers. These repaired computers then go to schools, charities (慈善团体), too.

根据短文内容, 选择正确答案.

When you are reading you have to focus on it, especially when you read a non-fiction (非小说类的) book. Are you taking the new knowledge? (1) _____ For me, taking notes helps make sure that I'm really thinking hard about what's in there. If I disagree with the book, sometimes it takes a long time to read it. Because I write so much in the margins. Sometimes I thought to myself. " Oh

(2) _____

I don't let myself start a book that I'm not going to finish. Take a book called Infinite Jest for example. I watched the movie The End of the Four, which is adapted from that book. I loved it. (3) _____ The reason is if the book is like two-or three-hundred-page book, there is no doubt that I want to read it after watching that movie. But it's quite long and hard to understand. I don't want to make an exception. (4) _____

Block out an hour

If you are reading books like those, you'd better sit down for an hour at a time, or you are not able to focus on what's in the book. (5) _____ Maybe it is possible for magazine articles or short YouTube videos. So every night I'm spending a little over an hour reading a book and make some progress.
