三、阅读理解。(每题2分, 计30分)

12. When my grandmother turned 89 years old, she started having some problems with her heart.

My family went with her to the doctor, who told her that she needed an operation (手术). However, because of my grandmother's age, the operation could be dangerous.

The doctor told my grandmother that she had a 50-percent chance of dying during the operation.

My grandmother was angry. She said, "Doctor, all you are talking about is statistics (数据), but I can surely tell you I am not going to have the operation in your hospital." With these words, my grandmother got up and left the doctor's office.

My grandmother might have been stubborn, but she was not a fool. So the next day she went to another doctor. He also told her she needed an operation. My grandmother asked the doctor, "If I were your mother, what would you say to her?"

The doctor walked up to her, smiled, put his arm around her and said, "Mom, let's do this

13. Have you made your summer holiday plan this year? Why not think about going on a volunteer holiday? During a volunteer holiday, you can help the local (当地的) people when you live with them.

Volunteer holidays include three ways:

- With a "people-based" focus.
- Helping to care for endangered wildlife.
- Helping to protect the environment.

If you want to go on a volunteer holiday, you need to decide where to go first. Here is a piece of advice:

Global Volunteers (美国环球志愿者)

It offers volunteer holidays in many places around the world. For example, you can travel to Australia and play games with the local children. You can also help the children to study. You might help with the gardening.

Volunteer holidays can be as short as a week, or as long as a year. What's certain is that you will learn a lot about the place you volunteer in, and will return with some amazing memories.

- (1) This passage is to give you some advice for your _____.
A. weekend B. winter holiday C. summer holiday D. national holiday

D. Lots of help from the world.
- (5) How long does a volunteer holiday last?
A. A week. B. More than a week. C. A year. D. It's not certain.

14. Try a "non-zero" day

Do you know what a "non-zero day" is? A friend of mine once introduced the concept (概念) of "non-zero days" to me.

"Non-zero days" means forming certain (某些) habits so that you can meet your goals. First, you get a calendar and put it on your wall. Try to choose a big calendar that you will see every day when you wake up. Next, you think of a goal of some kind. It can be something big—like getting into a good school or something small—like eating something healthy for lunch.

Every day, after you do something that gets you closer to your goal, you can put a big "X" on that day on the calendar. The idea is that every day, you should try to do something that will help you meet your goal. Even small steps, like taking five minutes to exercise or read a book, still count as (算作) "non-zero days". But if you miss a day, you have to put a "0" on that day on the calendar and start over. The goal, of course, is to have no "zero days".

So as you can see, just doing one small thing every day can make a big difference over time. Can you try to have no more "zero days"?

- (1) According to the passage, what does the word "non-zero day" mean?
A. It means a goal that you don't like to do.
B. It means a day that you don't have classes.
C. It means forming certain habits so that you can meet your goals.
D. It means you can do more exercise every day.
- (2) What does the underlined word "goal" mean in Chinese?
A. 目标 B. 分数 C. 习惯 D. 目的
- (3) To make "non-zero days" work, you should take one small step toward your goal _____.
A. every day B. once a week C. every two days D. as often as you can
- (4) You put "0" on the calendar when _____.
A. you do something big B. you try something new C. you change your goal
D. you do nothing for your goal

四、任务型阅读。(每题2分, 计10分)

15. Now the idea of "car sharing" is popular in Europe and the United States. That's to say, people share one car, not each person has one. As we know, most cars are parked for much time. In fact, we only drive our own cars as long as one or two hours a day. When we don't use them, we have to pay for parking and other things. We spend too much money on that. If we share a car, we'll only pay when we use it. Because some people want to save money, they think up the idea of "car sharing". Now many people are starting to do car sharing. In Switzerland, almost 40,000 people joined it. Japan is also trying to make "car sharing" popular around the country. Car sharing is the beginning of a new idea in transportation. It is also very easy for us to travel here and there without buying cars. Do you love to share a car with others?
