二、阅读下面短文，并根据短文内容判断正误。正确的用(T)，错误的用(F)。

2. If you've ever communicated with someone by email, you'll know that words alone can't always express what you want to say.

Luckily, our computers and smart phones today are packed with all kinds of simple images (图象) that can be put in message to help communicate more effectively. We call them images.

It's true, though. Before 1999, we had to depend mostly on words to communicate with others. Can you imagine? In 1999, a Japanese man called Shigetaka Kurita created emojis. (表情包) Then everything changed.

Kurita worked for NTT DoCoMo, a big Japanese mobile communications company. He was part of a team tasked with developing the company's first mobile Internet system. Their system limited users to 250 characters in messages, so Kurita thought emojis would allow users to communicate more effectively.

The first set of emojis contained things like the weather, foods, drinks, feelings, and moods. Kurita took inspiration from Japanese comics and Chinese characters.

Kurita's emojis were a big hit in Japan. And soon they were used by other Japanese technology companies. Now emojis are used in many technology platforms in the world.

1. Emojis can make our communication more meaningful.
2. We depended mostly on words to send messages before 1999.
3. Kurita created the company's first mobile Internet system.
4. You can find foods in the first set of emojis.
5. In fact, Kurita's emojis are not very popular all over the world.

三、阅读根据下面的短文，并根据短文内容回答问题。

3. New rules and behavior standards for middle school students came out in March. Middle schools are going to use a new way to decide who the top students are. The best students won't only have high marks. The following are some of the new rules.

Tell the truth. Have you ever cheated in an exam? Don't do it again! That's not something an honest student should do.

Do more at school. Good students love animals and care for other people. April is Bird-loving month in China. Is your school doing anything to celebrate it? You should join! In that way, you can learn more about animals and how to protect them.

Be open to new ideas. Have you ever thought people could live on the moon? Maybe you'll find another earth in space in the future. Everyone's new ideas are important.

Protect yourself. Has a thief ever taken money from one of your classmates? Don't let it happen to you. If you have to go back home late, you should let your parents know.

Use the Internet carefully. The Internet can be very useful for your study. But some things on the Internet aren't for kids, so try to look at the good web pages. You can use the web pages for fun or homework.

- (1) What should the best students do in an exam?

- (2) What should you do if you have to go back home late?

- (3) The web pages are only used for fun, aren't they?
