18. Heads Up!

In November, the US Soccer Federation, the biggest soccer organization in the US introduces new rules to make the sport safer for young players. This organization announced that players on its teams who are 10 or younger are no longer allowed to head the ball. Players aged from 11 to 13 have limits on how often they can practice heading. The new rules are designed to prevent kids from getting concussions – injuries caused by a blow to the head that shakes the brain inside the skull (头骨). Common symptoms (症状) include headaches and dizziness.

A DANGEROUS MOVE

Heading the ball can be one of the riskiest parts of soccer. Sometimes the force of hitting the ball with their heads gives players concussions. But more often, players receive concussions when they jump to head the ball and accidentally knock heads with other players or fall and hit their heads on the grass.

"More concussions happen during the act of heading than any other action in soccer," explains Dr. Robert Cantu, an expert on brain injuries.

LEADING THE WAY

So far, the new rules apply only to teams that are part of the US Soccer Federation. But the group says it hopes other leagues will soon follow its example.

- (1) _____ is the biggest soccer organization in the US.
A. The US Soccer Team B. The US Soccer Federation C. Soccer Federation in States
D. Soccer Group US
- (2) The new rules in the passage will help _____.
A. develop the players' soccer skills B. old players play better
C. young players play soccer more safely
D. make people more interested in soccer games
- (3) What does the underlined word "concussion" probably mean in Chinese? _____
A. 脑震荡 B. 高血压 C. 心绞痛 D. 低血糖
- (4) _____ is the most dangerous action in soccer?
A. Running with the ball B. Passing C. Controlling the ball
D. Heading
- (5) What can you learn from the last paragraph? _____
A. The soccer teams in the US follow the rules
B. The rules allow the organization to rule the other groups.
C. The organization hopes other leagues will soon make similar rules.
D. Young soccer players will never get injured from now on.
