7. How many times have we told ourselves, "I'm going to study from now on?" or "I'm going to do more English exercises to improve myself next week?" And soon, all our decisions are gone.

Being lazy is the most common thing in the world. It has become the biggest enemy(敌人)in front of us and "giving up" usually happens to us. So how could we beat laziness? The following ways are very useful.

First, set a goal that you can get to. Remember, laziness is powerful. That's because you are used to the way that things are going, and even if you want to change, it's difficult. So don't try to conquer(克服)the world in the beginning. Just conquer some small things which you can achieve.

As the saying goes, "Well begun is half done. "Second, take action at once and then you will make progress little by little. Please remember "Actions speak louder than words. "Third, be accountable(有责任心的). It's common for us to get lazy from time to time, and there's nothing wrong with that. But to beat laziness, we need a bit of pressure. Pressure can encourage people especially when it's good. This kind of pressure includes encouragement from family or friends and so on. Finally, be confident(信心)and keep doing it no matter what happens. You'll meet difficulties and fall down. Just get up and keep going. You'll make mistakes and get disappointed. It doesn't matter. Learn from your mistakes and keep going. In fact, being lazy is not terrible. Follow the advice above, keep your own promises and get started right now.

- (1) What is the biggest enemy in front of us?

- (2) _____
How many pieces of advice does the writer talk about?
- (3) _____
