4. Is lunch your favorite part of the school day? The school lunches I grew up with may be different from yours.

Just like in China, schools in the US do provide lunch for students. But when I was a kid, it was also common(普遍) for us to bring our own lunches to school. Every day, parents had to think about making a delicious and healthy lunch for their children. In the US, school kids sometimes can forget their lunch, or have a bully (霸凌者) take their lunch.

And that's not all. Most US schools, after a certain age, allow(允许) kids to go out for lunch. US kids can also get a driver's license (驾照) when they turn 16. After my friends and I turned 16, we'd often like to drive away from school and find something to eat. A common place for us to eat was our town's supermarket. In this supermarket, they served fried chicken. After eating, we'd go to the park before we had to go back to class.

- (1) What's the Chinese for the underlined word "provide" in paragraph 2?
A. 制作. B. 提供. C. 零售. D. 生产.
- (2) What do we know from Paragraph 2?
A. Most US kids do not like eating in school dining halls.
B. US kids can eat their own lunches or school food.
C. Most Chinese kids have lunch at home. D. There are many bullies in US schools.
- (3) When can kids go out for lunch in most US schools?
A. When they get their driver's license. B. When they have their own car.
C. When they are over a certain age. D. When they are in middle schools.
- (4) What can we learn from the last paragraph?
A. The writer liked eating fried chicken. B. US kids must get a driver's license at 16.
C. US students can have their classes in a park.
D. The afternoon class ends late in the US.
- (5) What does the story mainly talk about?
A. US homework. B. US school bullies. C. US driver's licenses.
D. Us school lunches.
