an idea. He went around the village with a basket and asked each person to give him some of their wisdom (智慧) The people laughed at Anansi because they knew that he needed wisdom the most. So each person put a bit in his basket and wished him good luck.

Soon his basket was full, but Anansi was worried that his neighbors might be jealous (嫉妒) of his wisdom and take it from him. He decided to hide it at the top of a tall tree. When he had tied the basket to the front part of his body, he tried to climb the tree, but it was too difficult. He tried again and again without success.

Then his youngest son walked by. "What are you doing, father?" he asked and Anansi told him. " Why don't you carry the basket on your back instead?" his son said.

Anansi put the basket on his back and climbed the tree easily, but he wasn't happy. I walked all over the village and collected so much wisdom that I am the wisest person ever, but my baby son is still wiser than me. Take back your wisdom!" he said. And he threw the basket of wisdom into the air and went home. And that's how wisdom went all over the world.

- (1) Anansi went around the village for _____.
A. wisdom B. luck C. food D. money
- (2) Anansi wanted to get his wisdom from _____.
A. his son B. his father C. the neighbors D. the villagers
- (3) The passage above is _____.
A. a report B. a story C. a survey D. a diary

15. The computer makes doing schoolwork easier for me than it was for my mom and dad. For example, when writing book reports and storing. I use Microsoft Word instead of a pen and paper, That way, after my teacher edits (编辑) my work. I can go back and make revisions without having to rewrite the whole thing. And Microsoft Word has a spell check! I use it all the time.

For English class, we're reading The Outsiders, by S. E. Hinton. As a pre-reading task, my teacher asked us to research teenage groups on the Internet. I tried Google, Encarta, and Yahoo first, and finally found an article on Time. com.

For a geography task on the United States, I used Encarta to learn about the Misissippi River. I needed to find out how deep the river is, how its widths and depths are different, what states it runs through, and what kind of fish live in it I used the information to show how the geography of a country influences its economy (经济). For example, the river s trade paths, the number of fish caught in it, and the tourists it attracts directly influence Southerners' jobs and incomes (收入).

I never go to the library to do research. It takes loo much time. Since I live in New York City and both my parents work, getting to the library isn't always easy. For a big assignment or research project, I used to stay at the library to read, or sign out whatever books or magazines I needed. Now being able to find the information in my own living mom makes everything a lot simpler. Online dictionaries and encyclopaedia (百科全书) also save time.

Sometimes, I think the computer spoils young people because it's so easy — at least physically. But computers a not like television, which does the thinking for you. You still have to use your mind. I prefer using a computer. Easy, fun, and fast.

- (1) When writing book reports, the computer can help the writer _____.

- A. call his teacher to edit his work. B. go back home and review his work
C. rewrite his work and correct his mistakes
D. store his work and check his spelling mistakes
- (2) The writer probably agrees that _____.
A. a teacher's work is much easier than before
B. English and geography are the most important subjects
C. computers are better than TV for not doing the thinking for us
D. students should use computer less and do more exercise every day
- (3) What's the passage mainly about?
A. Teenagers and computers. B. School subjects and computers.
C. Use of computers in teenagers' studies.
D. The advantages and disadvantages of computers.
16. When you were at school, the last thing you probably wanted to do was spend your weekends going to work. There was homework to do, sport to play and fun to be had. But our parents probably advise us to find a job to make some pocket money and get some life experience. When I was a teenager I had a paper round: delivering newspapers to people's homes. I then turned to a Saturday job in a supermarket: putting the things on the shelves in order and working at the checkout.
- Today in the UK you are allowed to work from the age of 13, and many children take up part-time jobs. It's a taste of independence. Teenagers agree that it teaches valuable lessons about working with adults and about managing your money. So, that's no bad thing!
- Some research has shown that not taking on a Saturday or holiday job could be detrimental to a person later. A 2015 study by the UK Commission on Employment and Skills found that employers' (雇主) organizations criticized young adults because they were ill-prepared for full time work. And they were proved not having taken part-time work at school age. However, a recent report has shown that the number of school children in the UK with a part-time job has fallen by 20% in the past five years.
- So, does this mean that British teenagers are now more afraid of hard work?
- Probably not. Some experts feel that young people think going out to work will influence their performance at school, and they are under more pressure now to study hard and get good exam results and a good job in the long term. However, Geoff Barton, general secretary of the Association of School and College Leaders, told BBC News that "Proper part-time work is a good way to help young people learn skills that they will need in their working lives." It's all about getting the right balance between doing part-time work and having enough time to study and rest.
- Many young people actually want to work because it gives them a sense of freedom. One 13-year-old girl called Rachel, who has a Saturday job in a shop, told the BBC that "I enjoy my job because I'm making money and it helps my confidence speaking to people and socializing with people I work with." That seems like something worth getting up for on a Saturday morning. Did you do a part-time job when you were at school?
- (1) According to the passage, teenagers probably prefer _____ on the weekend.
A. doing homework to having fun with friends

扫码查看解析

- B. playing sports outside to doing homework at home
 - C. having fun with their parents to playing sports outside
 - D. playing sports to delivering newspapers to people's homes
- (2) What does the word "detrimental" in Paragraph3 probably mean?
- A. Harmful. B. Impossible. C. Important. D. Worthy.
- (3) According to the passage, Geoff Barton probably agrees that _____.
A. teenagers like taking part – time jobs more than full-time jobs
B. doing part-time jobs is more important than studying and resting
C. taking up part time jobs benefits teenagers' future working lives
D. teenagers are under more pressure now to study hard and get good grades
- (4) What's the writer's main purpose in writing the passage?
A. To call people's attention to the school children.
B. To criticize school children are out of control.
C. To show school children dislike part – time jobs.
D. To encourage school children to take part – time jobs.

17. The Silk Road is the name of different roads that connected Europe, Africa and Asia long ago. It was named by F. von Richthofen who was a famous German geographer. Scientists believe people began to travel the Silk Road about 3, 000 years ago. People reached these different places along these roads. By the time the Chinese silk trade became important in the world the Silk Road covered almost 7.000 kilometers. It went from Rome to China, which is from the West to the Far East.

Businessmen travelled along the Silk Road to carry silk. of course. They also carried and traded other things like spices (香料), cloth, jewels and gold .

Along and around these ancient paths (小路), have come many fascinating and mysterious stories.

It is said that Roman soldiers who lost a war travelled through central Asia. They decided to live somewhere near the ancient Chinese villages. Some of these Romans married local Chinese women and the stories of the blond-haired, blue-eyed tribes of China was started.

Some historians believe that the people of Kashmir were taken away from their country Israel. They were prisoners (俘虏) of war almost 2, 800 years ago. People say that these people travelled along the Silk Road. They kept their Jewish way of life for a long time.

During its busiest period, the Silk Road allowed people from many different cultures and countries to meet each other and mix. The Silk Road allowed the sharing of valuable things and new ideas. It included people and trading goods from different areas. All these peoples travelled the Silk Road, and they shared goods, stories, languages and cultures.

In modern times, the old Silk Road routes (路线) are still used, but now they are crossed by trains instead of camels and horses. There is even a Silk Route Museum in Jiuquan in China. It has over 35, 000 objects from all along the Silk Road. In this way, China protects the history of many countries and peoples.
